Exclusive Views.

The magnitude, novelty and gorgeousness of the Elks' parade and decorations at Philadelphia are admirably reproduced in Lyman H. Howe's new program to be seen in Emporium Opera House on Thursday Eve., Oct. 31st. As Mr. Howe was so fortunate as to be granted special facilities to photograph these scenes from the official reviewing stand, the audience will see the parade from the same commanding viewpoint from which Mayor Reyburn saw it. Another picture which could also be secured only through special concessions granted by the Minister of State Railways of Austria shows Switzerland as seen from the front of a locomotive. The crowning feature of the new program, also, could be secured again only through most important concessions, granted by no less authority than the Lords of the Admiralty, England. Naturally this great series can be seen only at this exhibition as Mr. Howe controls the sole American rights. It reveals the complex machinery and the splendid majesty of the modern battleships as it never has been revealed before. They are shown ploughing the deep at full speed—the very personification of terrible strength. They are not "painted ships on a painted ocean" bnt the real, mighty engines of battle of the year 1907—hurling the deadly torpedoes, whose paths are clearly marked in the water, and defying the constantly diving and emerging sub-marines. Tremendous machines—all of them.

Indian Lecturer.

Mr. Cary W. Hartman will give his well known lecture on "The Indian as I Found Him" in the opera house, November 4th.

In this lecture two Indians in resplendent native costume are employed to illustrate the ceremonial customs and festivities of their people. These are real Indians and not moving pictures.

Mr. Hartman having lived with the Ojibways and the Soux for many years, knows the Indian, his customs, his ceremonials, his songs, bis dances, his religion and his legends as perhaps no other man to-day endeavoring to tell from the platform the story of the American Indian, and hence it is that he interests his hearers, both old and young from the first and charms them to the close by the beautiful and simple presentation of his subject.

The lecture will be given for the benefit of the High School Science Department.

Matinee and evening: 3:30 and 8:00 o'clock, p. m. Admission 25 cents; reserved seats, 10c extra. Chart at H. S. Lloyd's store on Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock.

Jefferson and Hamilton.

Our County Superintendent has a happy way of so ordering the Institute courses that each year brings in review some important study which did not find place in the year preceding. Never before, we believe, at any of our Institutes has the subject of United States history been presented in the light of its central ideas. Such a presentation has been given to us last week by President Fess of Antioch College, Ohio. In a course of six lectures he traced the development of the two principles which, in combination, make up the very heart of American history. These are the principles of liberty and nationality. The one idea found its chief embodiment and representative in Thomas Jefferson; the other, in Alexander Hamilton. These two men were bitter rivals and opponents, and though political parties are still, and no doubt always will be, divided in their respective emphases upon local liberty and central power, it still remains true that the country has equal need of both principles and should accord equal honor to Jefferson, the representative of liberty and to Hamilton the representative of power. It was from this large, non-partizan point of view that Dr. Fess presented the characters and achievements of these two most representative and influential Americans. It was the privilege of the present writer to hear Mr. Bryan some days ago at the Virginia State Fair at Richmond. In the course of his two hour speech, Mr. Bryan took occasion to point out the contrasting tendencies of Jefferson and Hamilton, but he drew his contrast in a way that was much less than fair to Hamilton. Hamilton, it is true, did distrust the common people, and did seek to have the government removed as far as possible from direct popular influence and control. He would have had the president and the senators elected for life, and the governors of the several states appointed by the central government. While on these points Hamilton's influence was over-ruled by that of Jefferson, it is an injustice to Hamilton to represent him, as Mr. Bryan has done, as one whose sole interest was to thwart and defeat the will of the people. Mr. Bryan did not point out that had it not been for Hamilton we should not have advanced in national union and strength beyond the loose and ineffective Article of Confederation of 1777. Mr. Bryan apparently fails to see that his own political program could never be carried into effect had our Conftitution been framed entirely according to the ideas of Jefferson, for in that case the Federal government would be two weak and disjointed to protect the people in their inalienable rights. Hamilton saw more clearly than did any other American of his period the absolute need of a government sufficiently centralized and endowed with authority to accomplish effectively the ends for which governments exist. Hamilton's interest was not to defeat the will of the people but to see that the government should be invested with all necessary power. If he was too distrustful of the common people, that must be regarded as a mere detail. Time has eliminated from our political life the Hamiltonian distrust of the people, just as it has vindicated over and over again the Hamiltonian contention that a government without power is useless and contemptible.

The nation had the greatest need both of Jefferson, the apostle of liberty, and of Hamilton the champion of federal power. Jefferson gave the country its dominant spirit and ideals; Hamilton gave it the organization and instrument through which alone any large destiny can be fulfilled.

Edison's Latest.

The laboring man who makes $1.50 per day can have an indestructible cement dwelling built in 12 hours at a cost of $1,000 is the startling statement made by Thomas A. Edison. Next spring he expects to build a house by this model. By a system of patent molds it is possible for any contractor to build a house of solid cement, 25 feet wide, and 45 feet deep three stories high, for $1.000. By pouring the cement in iron molds, it will be possible to build a house in 12 hours, and in six days more it will have hardened and become indestructible.—Ex.

From An Old Friend

M. A. Berfield, of Pine River, Minn., writes to the PRESS renewing his subscription for another year, at the same time says: "I was coming back to see the friends and relatfons but my health has been poorly for the last year, so will have to put it off for the time being. You have my best regards." It is very gratifying to hear from old Cameron county friends, especially from subscribers who knew ye editor when a boy. How time does fly?

Prosperous Emporium Boy.

John D. Morrissey, general agent of the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic Ry., with headquarters at Superior, Wis., accompanied by his son James, who resides at Duluth, Minn., and P. J. Morrissey, of this place, were PRESS visitors on Monday. The young man is manager of Duluth opera house and was enroute for New York city, to book daily attractions for his opera house. We found the young man modest and energetic, taking his modesty from his father. We were pleased to meet the genial gentlemen.

"The Girl of the Golden West."

The title role of David Belasco's great play, "The Girl of the Golden West," which comes to the Emporium Opera House on Thursday, Nov. 14, is that of a favorite in a saloon and gambling room in a small mining town. She loves a highwayman and is loved by the sheriff. Her eflorts to secure the safety of the man she lovos, his arrest, condemnation to death and final escape furnish a series of tensely dramatic situations.

The Waning Hardwood Supply.

Although the demand for hardwood lumber is greater than ever before. the annual cut to-day is a billion feet less than it was seven years ago. In this time the wholesale price of the different classes of hardwood lumber advanced from 25 to 65 per cent. The cut of oak, which in 1899 was more than half the total cut of hardwoods, has fallen off 36 per cent. Yellow poplar, which was formerly second in point of output, has fallen off 38 per cent, and elm has fallen off one-half.

The cut of softwoods is over four times that of hardwoods, yet it is doubtful if a shortage in the former would cause dismay in so many industries. The cooperage, furniture. and vehicle industries depend upon hardwood timber, and the railroads, telephone and telegraph companies, agricultural implement manufacturers and builders use it extensively.

This leads to the question, Where is the future supply of hardwoods to be found? The cut in Ohio and Indiana, which, seven years ago, led all other States, has fallen off one-half. Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, Tennessee, Texas, West Virginia, and Wisconsin have also declined in hardwood production. The chief centers of production now lie in the Lake States, the lower Mississippi Valley, and the Appalachian Mountains. Yet in the Lake States the presence of hardwoods is almost certain indication of rich agricultural land, and when the hardwoods are cut the land is turned permanently to agricultural use. In Arkansas, Louisiania, and Mississippi the production of hardwoods is clearly at its extreme height, and in Missouri and Texas it has already begun to decline.

The answer to the question, therefore, would seem to lie in the Appalachian Mountains. They contain the largest body of hardwood timber left in the United States. On them grow the greatest variety of tree species anywhere to be found. Protected from fire and reckless cutting, they produce the best kinds of timber, since their soil and climate combine to make heavy stands and rapid growth. Yet much of the Appalachian forest has been so damaged in the past that it will be years before it will again reach a high state of productiveness. Twenty billion feet of hardwoods would be a conservative estimate of the annual productive capacity of the 75,000,000 acres of forest lands in the Appalachians if they were rightly managed. Until they are we can expect a shortage in hardwood timber.

Circular 116, of the Forest Service, entitled "The Waning Hardwood Supply," discusses this situation. It may be had upon application to the Forester, Forest Service, Washington, D. C.

Check Forger.

Harry Frazier, who made his home at Four Mile, this county, forged a check for $26.30 on Arthur Lucore, his uncle, passing the same on R. Seger & Son for clothing, when he skipped out. When the discovery was made on on Tuesday that the check was a forgery Chief Mundy tried to locate the forger but up to this time he has not been caught. Frazier has served time in the Reformatory and was out on parole. When caught he should be given a good dose.

Since writing the above it has been decided that the check was not made by Frazier and appears to have the ear marks of a woman's hand writing. No clue has been discovered that leads to the arrest of Frazier, who passed the check.

Burglary.

Sneak thieves forced an entrance into R. Seger & Son's store early yesterday morning and carried away a quantity of clothing. A hole in the rear door was sawed large enough to admit the thieves. The tools were stolen from Emporium Machine Co. Other places were "attacted" but nothing taken. Two men were prowling around Jos. Kaye's residence, but the dog gave the alarm, when Robert Kaye pulled his gun. The sneaks were holding the dog behind a board pile near Judge Green's residence.

Chas. J. Howard, the Republican candidate for County Treasurer, is fully competent to conduct the office of County Treasurer, being a graduate of one of the best educational institutions in the country. If elected, and every well informed voter knows he will be by a handsome majority, he will conduct the business of the office personally. He is a struggling young farmer, and not wealthy as some smart guys would like the voters to believe, on the contrary he is a poor man—a struggling farmer, but honest as the day is long.

Chas. J. Howard Will be Elected.

Unless all signs fail Mr. Chas. J. Howard, the Republican nominee for County Treasurer, will have a handsome majority. Our nominee is the second son of Geo. Howard, deceased, and bears the same open frank countenance of his illustrious father, whose unsullied name we all like to remember; the same free-hartedness, liberality and honesty. If elected he is competent and will be obliging, careful and efficient in the discharge of his duties. There is no valid reason why any Republican should fail to give him his vote. To make no mistake, just place an (X) in the Republican box—that will do the business.

The Kuehne Company Opening.

The R. Kuehne Company are rapidly getting their large stock of goods marked and placed on the counters and shelving. He now has a large force of lady clerks at work marking his goods and when all is ready for the Grand Opening, next Wednesday and Thursday, Mr. Kuehne as well as the following ladies will be pleased to meet their friends: Miss Lena Evans, Miss Edith Heilman, Miss Myrtle Gregory, Miss Marie Garvin and Miss Mary Murray. Fisk's orchestra will be present and render some choice music. Mr. Kuehne desires the PRESS to extend his compliments to the citizens of Cameron county and requests that as many as possible do him the honor of accepting his invitation to be his guests upon this occasion, "that all may become better acquainted." Remember the dates Nov. 6th and 7th.

Marriage Announced.

Mr. W. J. Merry, one of the postal messengers between Emporium and Buffalo, and Miss Edith M. Sterner, a highly respected young lady of this place, announced their marriage on Tuesday, the ceremony having taken place at St. Stephen's Episcopal Rectory, Olean, N. Y., on Aug. 25th, Rector A. M. Ashton officiating. The announcement came as a surprise to their friends who supposed they were preparing their home in the Tulis block and would be married this week. Mr. and Mrs. Merry have our best wishes for a merry life. The laugh is on their friends.

Little Girl Outraged and Murdered.

The citizens of Renovo were horrified yesterday morning to learn that little Mary Donnelly, a child between nine and ten years, had been outraged and struck on the head with some blunt instrument. The body was found on the "dump" by two young men about two o'clock yesterday morning. The child had attended the wedding of her aunt and disappeared. A searching party composed of hundreds of men and boys were out all night but could get no clues. There is great excitement in Renovo over this horrible outrage.

A Word for C. J. Howard.

Special to the Press.

Having seen but little in the local papers concerning the candidacy of C. J. Howard, I desire to submit a few thoughts for the voters to take into account when casting their votes.

The first thought that occurs to me is, whether any Republican can give a valid excuse for refusing to vote for Mr. Howard for County Treasurer. Some of the excuses manufactured by the Democrats run about as follows; "He is too young to ask for this important office." "He does not need the money while his competitor does." "Too much Howard." &c.

If the people will weigh these arguments they will find that there is absolutely nothing in them to warrant one Republican to vote against him. In the first place he is old enough and has been a resident of this county as long or nearly so as his competitor. That he does not need the money is a poor argument for the reason that he probably has no more of this world's goods than his competitor. He has a large family and is no doubt as anxious to provide for it as is his opponent. That his name is Howard is no fault of his and if elected it will not be by the exclusive aid of the Howard influence.

As to the man, I wish to say that this county never produced a more humane young fellow than C. J. Howard. He has been charitable to the poor at all times far beyond his means and a better neighbor never lived than he. Everything he has is always free to everybody's use. He is liberal to a fault and what money he has spent, was spent right at home and every body got a share of it. If elected, he will carry his accomodation to the people as far as the law will permit him and no man will ever leave his office because of ungentlemanly treatment. He does not know how to do this.

This fact remains, whether elected or not, that in the history of Cameron county, neither party ever presented a candidate closer to the people, more generous, obliging, kind and accomodating than C. J. Howard and he never was an enemy to any one.

Stage Reform.

Every now and then the important intelligence is imparted to a waiting multitude that the stage is to be elevated. It is an old cry and it signifies nothing, for the patrons of the playhouse make it what it is and managers only supply a public demand. References are always being made to the palmy days of the drama, and a revival of them is frequently predicted, but the truth is that there were just as reprehensible performances in the past as there are in the present, though, of course, there were some noble histrionic efforts that are repeated to-day. It is claimed that this is an era of commercial managers, who are only bent on making money and are deficient in artistic inspiration, but even Shakespeare did not disdain accumulating a comfortable fortune for his day from the production of his plays, and few men are anxious to embark in an unpaying venture, even for the sake of art. We are now told that there is to be an intellectual theater in upper Broadway, New York, where only the cream of the best old and new plays will be brought out. We wish it success, remarks the Boston Budget, but we are afraid that its patronage will not be remunerative, for the theater is regarded by the majority of people as a place of entertainment, and not as a school for moral and intellectual training.

China After Ideas.

Slowly but surely modern ideas are getting a foothold in China. The appointment of a commission to visit Japan, Great Britain and Germany with a view to examining and reporting upon the working of constitutional systems in those countries is full of significance, which is increased because of the character of those chosen for the service. These are men of the most progressive spirit. Furthermore, they represent the aspirations of the real Chinese rather than the purposes of the Manchus, who to a large extent are an alien element, although they have managed to fasten their power upon the government and to perpetuate a dynasty which has been a constant source of political friction. The voice of awakened China is making itself heard and is likely to be more insistent in demanding changes and reforms that shall be for the benefit of all the people. And much of this impetus to better things comes from Chinese who have been educated in the United States or have lived here long enough to see how liberal government works.

A wealthy Texan is having a statue of John D. Rockefeller made and wants a suitable inscription. Well, there is, "He made him to suck honey out of the rocks, and oil out of the flinty rock;" or, "Will the Lord be pleased with ten thousand rivers of oil?" or "But the wise took oil." Or, says the Indianapolis Star, if he does not want scriptural extracts, he might use, "He was a big five man"; or "Base is the slave that pays." But if he really wants to touch John with delicate flattery, let him make it "He never fuddled his tee."

Dismay and consternation reign in the ranks of the Ananias club. A Cambridge professor has invented a machine to cure liars. It is to be doubted if mankind will welcome this wonderful achievement. To abolish lying will cut off the most satisfactory and prolific source of vituperation and close one of the most fruitful sources of the gayety of nations.

Down-trodden man, deprived of the rights of his sex, is beginning to claim those of the usurping sex. A plumber in New York finding himself badly treated by his wife, left her and "went home to mother." In this move belligerent marital femininity is facing an unexpected and serious crisis.

Peace advocates are trying to check the importation of German war toys. They wish some one to invent a popular "peace toy." How would pigeons do? Boys like to raise them as much as they like to play with tin soldiers. Why not distribute doves of peace in pairs?

DEEP WATERWAY

ONE OF THE CHIEF PURPOSES OF PRESENT ADMINISTRATION.

The President Has Done Much to Champion This Cause of the People of the Great Central States.

The time has come in the development of the resources of the United States when the rail transportation, which pioneered and fostered that development to its present vast proportions, must be supplemented by water transportation on the largest feasible scale. This is essential not only because of the lower rates—both by water and rail—that would result from the improvement and use of the navigable streams and the construction of canals to connect different water systems, but it is also necessary in order to relieve the railroads themselves of burdens incompatible with good service and too excessive to be borne with safety to the traveling public and the train crews.

But the great ruling reason for developing the waterways of the country is that water transportation is the natural and cheaper method of handling a great percentage of the country's shipping, especially as to raw materials and heavy manufactures. Once improved, these waterways would have almost limitless capacity. It would then remain only to increase the shipping facilities to meet the demand, and this demand would grow constantly and rapidly through the demonstrations of actual shipping. The people can afford to have the federal government and the several states contribute millions to the improvement of navigable streams. Water transportation will do more to increase the value—that is, the net profit—of products of the soil and many products of the factories than any other one thing in the range of legislative and administrative policy.

It must be remembered also that low water rates make low rail rates. Such competition, under the regulation of the government, would completely solve the problem of the cost of shipping in most of the country. It would, of course, compel a readjustment of the financiering and management of railway properties, for the holders of these properties would have to base their calculations much more largely on the actual investment and much less on the factor of dividends on watered stock. Even the cost of railroad construction would be lowered by water shipping, for much of the material used in construction could be carried for less by water than it can be carried by rail.

The outlook for inland waterway development in this country is almost overwhelming in its scope. Taken in connection with the ports on the Atlantic, on the Gulf of Mexico and on the Northern Pacific, and especially in connection with the early completion of the Panama canal, this prospect widens until there is seen a direct connection between such inland ports as Kansas City and the water marts of the entire world.

President Roosevelt has made the development of inland waterways one of the chief purposes of his administration. He has done much to champion this cause. His appeal is wholly unpartisan. It is made to the people, to the growers, the manufacturers, the merchants and to all other classes of business men. His attitude accords perfectly with another of his great policies—the conservation of the natural resources of the country. He would avoid waste, he would prevent the exploitation of the people by corporations using these resources; yet he would give to all the best possible facilities for handling the products of the land.—Kansas City Star.

"Help Wanted."

Reports show that work is waiting for 256,400 persons.—Washington Dispatch.

Come, all you men who want to work,
there's jobs and jobs galore;
The country's full of workers, but it needs a million more.
There's a hearty welcome waiting from the Golden Gate to Maine
For those prepared to work their way with two good hands or brain.
It matters not your creed or race, your station or your birth,
So long as you can fill the job—the only test of worth.
There's work for men in thousands, jobs
all along the line,
In field and farm and factory, in lumber
woods and mine,
The shirkers aren't wanted, nor any of the dross
Need the signal of the whistle or the urging of the boss;
But the ever-ready workers, let 'em come in bigger mobs—
There's work and welcome waiting for the men can fill their jobs.
—N. Y. American.

Why?

The Cincinnati Enquirer does not believe in putting off until to-morrow what should be done to-day. While not insisting that tariff disturbance is the burning need of the hour, it logically urges that if revision is needed two years hence it is needed now:

"The principle of the tariff is the same now that it will be 18 months or two years hence. If it is wrong now the simple and perhaps the straightforward thing to do would be to commence the overhauling of the schedules at the first opportunity, which will be on the first Monday of December next."

Equally logical is the plea that if tariff revision is not needed now it may not be needed two years from now, and hence there is no occasion for setting a date. Why promise for 1909 a thing which the country dreads and does not want in 1907?

THE PACIFIC SQUADRON.

Used by Democratic Press as Reason for Condemning President.

The contemplated dispatch of the battleship fleet to the Pacific appears to have aroused great terror in certain quarters. It has even taken the form of appealing to Europe to declare how dangerous the movement is, and the public is told by some imaginary parties across the water that war will certainly be the consequence. Europe has no logical connection with the movements of American naval vessels, and is probably not concerning itself with the matter, as it has things of its own to occupy to the full of its attention.

It is difficult to imagine a greater absurdity than this fear that the movement of an American fleet from one ocean to another has in it any perils save those which will be encountered in transit. To move a great fleet of battleships around the Horn and up the South American coast to an American port involves some danger by wind and wave—more, perhaps, than if only one ship were sent by the route, as fogs may be encountered, in which collisions may occur, and storms are occasionally extremely severe in the vicinity of Cape Horn; but naval vessels are built to withstand the hazards of the deep, and naval officers are trained to manage them so that they will be subjected to the least possible danger.

It is not unlikely that the most serious obstacle encountered by the fleet will be the lack of coaling facilities. Efforts are being made to supply this deficiency, and there will probably be little delay encountered, but energy and skill are sometimes baffled by unforeseen causes. When all things are considered the only mishap that is likely to occur is delay in the movements of the fleet for want of a timely supply of fuel. When it reaches the Pacific there will be home ports enough for all the needs of a great fleet.

But why Japan should be anxious to go to war with the United States because a great American fleet is in the Pacific, when she has not gone to war with this country during the absence of such a fleet, is one of those mysterious riddles which would puzzle Lord Dundreary. Whatever may be said of the Japanese, they have been credited with a vast amount of shrewdness and common sense. They may have bitter feelings against this country. Logically, they ought to have more bitter feelings against Great Britain. They may even have cherished the purpose of giving trouble in one way or another, but they know very well when it is advisable to act and when it is better to control their feelings or their secret intentions. If they harbored any sinister purpose—and they expressly say that they never have done so—it would have been more sensible to execute it when there was a very slight naval force to check them than to carry it out in the presence of an immense fleet, which could make kindling wood of their little navy.

There is probably little basis for this fear of war which is so vociferously asserted. There is something else at the bottom of it. A reckless desire to condemn everything done by the administration appears to be more in evidence than craven fright. The transfer of the battleship fleet from the Atlantic to the Pacific may be an experiment of the first importance. The Pacific coast has often been a source of anxiety, and its exposed condition in case of war has caused embarrassment to more than one administration. If this gigantic fleet can move safely and expeditiously around the Horn, the defense of that part of the union will be solved beyond question.—Baltimore American.

A GERMAN BALLOON WON THE BIG RACE

ONE OF THE FRENCH SKYBOATS WAS A GOOD SECOND.

THE DIRIGIBLE AIRSHIP RACE

At St. Louis Resulted in a Victory for the Craft Operated by Lincoln Beachy, of Toledo—Shobel's Airship was Second.

St. Louis, Mo. — With every balloon racing record broken, the second international cup competition, which started from St. Louis on Monday, ended Wednesday with the German balloon Pommern winning first prize for the longest flight. The finish of the race was so close, however, that the French contestant, L'Isle de France, which descended at 1:10 p. m. Wednesday at Hubertsville, N. J., a few miles from the Atlantic coast, may possibly be declared winner after official measurements are completed. The Pommern landed at 9 a. m. Wednesday at Asbury Park, N. J., apparently a few miles further from St. Louis than Hubertsville.

Another German balloon, the Dusseldorf, stands third in the race. American entries finished fourth, fifth and eighth, while a third German team finished sixth, another French team seventh, the one English balloon entered fell far short of the others.

The unofficial estimated air line flight of the Pommern is 880 miles and that of the L'Isle de France is 875 miles. The Dusseldorf, third, which landed near Dover, Del., is estimated to have covered 790 miles. The official measurements will be computed by the geological survey of the United States government.

Only the proximity of the Atlantic Ocean stopped the flight of the Pommern. The balloon could have remained in the air many hours longer, and probably would have added several hundred miles to her record but for the expanse of water ahead.

Following is the record of the other seven balloons in the race:

United States, American, landed at Hamilton, Ont., 6:15 p. m. Tuesday.

America (Capt. Chandler's balloon), landed at Patuxent, Md., 8 a. m. Wednesday.

Anjou, French, landed 10 a. m. at Armenius Mines, Va.

Dusseldorf, Germany, landed at Little Creek, Del., 7:15 a. m. Wednesday.

St. Louis, American, landed at Westminster, Md., 6:40 a. m. Wednesday.

Abercron, Germany, landed at Manassas, Va., 7:10 a. m. Wednesday.

Lotus II., English, landed at Leesburg, O., noon.

Sailing to windward and return over a course measuring one mile and a half from start to finish, Lincoln Beachy, of Toledo, on Wednesday won the dirigible airship race which marked the close of the St. Louis aeronautic carnival. The prize was $2,000. In his "Beachy airship," a cigar-shaped affair propelled by a four-cylinder gasoline motor, the winner covered the distance in 4 minutes and 40 seconds.

Jack Dallas in the "Strobel airship," a sister craft to the Beachy, won second place with 6 minutes and 10 seconds, while Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin, of New York, in the "California Arrow" was third in 7 minutes and 5 seconds.

A fourth competitor, "The Comet," entered by Charles Baysdorfer, of Omaha, and sailed by Horace Wild, did not complete the first trial of the course, the motor breaking.

The race was a start at will affair, with each contestant having three trials.

ARE IN RECEIVERS' HANDS.

Four of the Westinghouse Concerns are Temporarily Embarrassed.

Pittsburg, Pa. — A flurry in local financial circles, caused by the embarrassment of four concerns of the Westinghouse interests, was quickly ended here Wednesday by the prompt action of the Pittsburg Clearing House association and the Pittsburg stock exchange.

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co., the Westinghouse Machine Co. and the Security Investment Co., a holding company for the Westinghouse interests, are now in the hands of receivers appointed by Judge Ewing, of the United States circuit court. A fourth concern, the Nernst Lamp Co., will be turned over to receivers to-day.

The Pittsburg stock exchange, which was closed yesterday morning when informed of the situation by the Pittsburg Clearing House association, will likely remain closed to-day. This action is taken for the purpose of preventing an unnecessary sacrifice of values by a heavy liquidation of stocks.

Statements issued by George Westinghouse, prominent bankers, officers of the stock exchange and the clearing house committee show that the financial situation here is sound.

The severe stringency of the money market is alone responsible for the Westinghouse difficulties. The solvency of the embarrassed companies is not questioned. The concerns at present are enjoying the largest amount of business known in their career. The inability to secure funds to pay off maturing loans caused the embarrassment.

Trust Company Goes Into Receivership

Pittsburg, Pa. — In the United States court last night H. S. Stewart and William L. Abbott were appointed receivers for the Iron City Trust Co. The papers filed in court represent the company as having assets exceeding $4,000,000 and liabilities to depositors of about $1,700,000.

Waycross, Ga. — The plant of the South Atlantic Car Manufacturing Co., located here, was almost totally destroyed by fire last evening. Loss $350,000, with $250,000 insurance. Rebuilding will commence at once.

"A little, my child," she answered.

WEALTH BY BILLIONS

VALUE OF FARM PRODUCTS FOR THE YEAR 1907.

WHAT THE EARTH PRODUCES

Agriculturalists Have It In Their Power to Curtail the Operation of Trusts and Prevent Unequal Distribution of Money.

Farms of the United States in 1907 will produce more wealth than all the gold mines of the world have produced in 20 years. Conservative estimates place the value of all farm products at approximately $7,000,000,000, or about $200,000,000 more than their value in 1906. The farmer is the magician, the alchemist, that makes use of nature to enrich the world. The farmers' corn crops alone average a billion dollars a year, and all the other cereals another billion, with cotton, tobacco, hay and flax worth another billion, and the fruits, garden truck and animals a few billions more. Thus it can be seen that the farmer, produces wealth greater than taken from it by the miners for its precious gems and minerals. There is no other foundation for the wealth and business of the world other than the land. Men cannot eat gold; the coal is only useful to him as a means of utilizing what the earth grows; there is nothing in the mineral world that will sustain life, or anything that is necessary unless mortals eat, drink and wear clothes. When there is abundance of agricultural productions, there are prosperous times, and a famine when the opposite occurs. The whole financial fabric, the entire commercial system, is dependent upon the farmer, and his work.

One billion dollars is an amount beyond the comprehension of the average man. The life of an individual is not sufficiently long to count it cent by cent should he work ten hours a day, from his tenth year until death. This is the average value of the corn crop alone that the farmers of the United States produce yearly.

One would believe that if only a small portion of the vast wealth, which the farmers produce could be only retained in the agricultural communities, there would be a class of rich men greater than in any commercial community. Yet statistics show that for the amount of wealth yearly produced, the farmers are retainers of only a small portion of it. The tendency is toward concentration of wealth in great financial centers. It is in these places, and by the control of this great wealth, that trusts are built up, and the machinery put in operation that systematically draws from the agricultural sections the great wealth produced. Farmers can, if they will, bring about a change by a simple adherence to the home trade principle; by patronage of local business institutions instead of the concerns in the large cities. D. M. CARR.

FOR THE HOME TOWN.

Be a "booster" for your home town. By patronizing other than local institutions you are using a boomerang that is likely to fly back and do you injury when you least expect it. No one can be an ideal citizen and talk and work against the interests of his home town. So long as you are a resident of a community, do your part towards assisting it to greater progress.

Those who are opposed to the evils of capital concentration, the building up of trusts that work against the interests of the masses, should consider the fact that any and every system of business that depletes a section of the country of the wealth it produces strengthens the system of business and financial concentration. One of the most baneful systems that at the present is working against the interests of the smaller cities and towns, and is the greatest medium of draining wealth from agricultural communities, is the mail-order plan of doing business. From some rural towns from 40 to 50 per cent. of the trade goes to foreign concerns. If this trade were confined to the home town, its business would be doubled, employment given to twice as many people; the profits accruing from mercantile business would seek local investment, and within a few years the population of the town would be more than doubled, and all living within the district would be benefited.

Every kind and class of goods have a real value, and this value is based upon the cost of the raw material, the price of the labor in producing it, and the cost of distribution. Whenever there are big bargains offered in any line, and goods offered 'below value," be careful and see that you are not getting an inferior article.

While the farmer may receive a dozen papers from the large cities, he invariably reads his local paper. It is to the interest of the farmer as well as the merchant that the latter use its columns freely to tell of the latest prices, goods freshly received, etc. The farmer wants to buy, and the merchants want to sell, and the farmer will buy when and where he can save money. The merchant who lets business go away from his town through lack of advertising rightly is not a very enterprising business man.

It is well to be on guard when dealing with itinerent agents, sellers of groceries, carriages, machinery, patent rights, etc. It is a pretty good idea to never take grab-bag chance when you wish to buy an article. See what you are purchasing before paying for it.

POOR GOODS, CHEAP PREMIUMS.

How Money Is Sometimes Squandered in Patronizing Prize-Package Concerns.

The economical housewife is a blessing. She who will watch the pennies and dimes can greatly assist her husband in accumulating money for use during days of adversity. Quite often women through their anxiety to assist in saving, and not having a training along business lines, make foolish expenditures. How often do we find women in the country towns and districts engaged in buying soaps, spices, teas and coffees from some club-order concern with a view of getting cheap premiums that are offered with each lot of goods? There is no economy in this method. Women as well as men should remember that there is never anything of value given without an equitable compensation, and when purchased on the club plan the profits paid are generally enormous. You cannot get something for nothing. If you desire to purchase $10 or $20 worth of groceries, the best place to buy them is at some responsible grocery establishment in your own town. You can see what you are getting, and you know that the goods must be good or you can return them. When you get a premium with a lot of soaps or spices or extracts, you will find that while the goods may appear all right, there is a great chance of fraud that you little look for. The bars of soap will be of light weight, poorly dried, made of cheaper materials, and would be dear at your home store at half the price that you are compelled to pay for them. The spices will be half ground bark, and the extracts synthetic, never made from fruit flavors, but out of the dirty-looking coal-tar, a by-product of gas-manufacturing, and even the teas and coffees will be of the poorest kind and doctored up to look well. Then how about the premiums? You will find that they, too, are of the cheapest class, and could be purchased at the local store for half what they are represented to be worth. Women are only doing their duty in trying to assist their husbands, but too often they waste money by patronizing premium and club concerns that operate from distant cities in small towns and rural communities.

CRIES OF THE SIREN.

Alluring Promise Made in Exaggerated Advertisements to Gain Trade.

"Don't be robbed," "Save the profits that your storekeeper makes," and many like catch phrases is the principal advertising stock of the concerns who claim to sell at "wholesale" prices direct to consumers. Their arguments appeal to women and men who have little knowledge of commercial methods. It is the appeal of selfishness that wins for the concerns who seek business among the residents of farming districts rather than any merit that the arguments presented may have.

There can be little doubt as to the mail-order way of doing business being a permanent fixture in the mercantile world. The fact cannot be disputed that in certain lines of goods which are offered as "leaders" lower prices are quoted than like goods are generally sold at in local stores. But the average price on all lines cannot be lower, character and quality considered, than the same goods could be sold at by the local merchant.

The business of the big mail-order concerns has been gained by extensive advertising and continuous aggressive work. It has been the apathy of the merchants in the country towns that has allowed these concerns to take trade from "under their very noses." Conditions that allow the steady drain of money from the agricultural districts and small towns to the big cities are to be deplored. There cannot be doubt as to the evils of the mail-order systems as a factor in the concentration of wealth in the great financial centers, and the resultant building up of trusts. For the past quarter of a century the trust evil has been constantly developing and keeping pace with it, is the mail-order system. Much like the leprosy, its progress is such that the evil has a firm foothold ere serious attention is paid to it. The cry of "Save the dealers' profits" is synonymous with "Kill the industries of your own town; help us bind the trust ties firmer about your own hands." Don't be a traitor to your home town, even though there is a promise of a small saving in cents and dollars. Do your part to head off the business concentration evil.

FREE TREATMENT.

A Method That Should Cure People of the Habit of Patronizing Quack Doctors.

It matters little how widespread through the press is the information as to frauds being operated in the country, there is always a field for the people who live by petty graft. One of the latest plans to defraud has recently been worked in a number of western states. Strangers, purporting to be agents of a free hospital, would approach a farmer, inquire as to his health, and promise him free treatment should he be ailing, claiming that the state medical department would furnish the medicine free. A lengthy statement of his complaint would be written and his signature secured. I few weeks later a note duly signed by the farmer would be presented to him by his home bank. This appears to be a flimy scheme, but nevertheless more than a score of farmers in one Minnesota county were caught for from $50 to $200 each. Don't sign any contract or statement unless you are positive of its character.

CLEARING HOUSE TRIES TO STEM TIDE

OF FINANCIAL DISASTER BY ISSUING CERTIFICATES.

AN ACTION SELDOM TAKEN.

Six Banks and Trust Companies in Brooklyn and Vicinity Suspended Payment Friday—Savings Banks Enforce 60-Day Rule.

New York City.—Friday was another nerve-racking day, but the financial institutions of New York showed extraordinary power of resistance to the pressure put upon them. While several minor institutions were forced to close their doors, yet two things should be said about them—first, that the amount involved was not so great as to exert any marked influence on the general situation, as these banks were located in residential quarters and did not come in touch with the larger financial institutions of the metropolis; second, that there is every reason to believe that these banks and trust companies are entirely solvent and their difficulties will prove to be only temporary and due entirely to inability to secure ready cash.

In the light of the general excitement the savings banks put into effect the rule requiring 30 to 60 days' notice for the withdrawal of deposits.

The institutions which closed their doors Friday, with the sums due depositors, were: The United States Exchange bank, Harlem, $600,000.

International Trust Co., about $100,000.

The Borough bank, of Brooklyn, $4,000,000.

The Brooklyn bank, $2,300,000.

Williamsburg Trust Co., Brooklyn, $7,500,000.

The First National Bank of Brooklyn, $3,500,000.

The First National Bank of Brooklyn, the Williamsburg Trust Co. and the International Trust Co. were allied institutions. None of these companies had any important business connections with the larger banks.

On the other hand a number of favorable features marked the day. The Trust Company of America and the Lincoln Trust Co., the two organizations which have suffered most from runs, closed the day with all demands having been met.

The most favorable incident of the day was that the stock exchange was provided with funds ample to meet its immediate necessities by a money pool headed by J. P. Morgan, which sent about $15,000,000 to the exchange during the afternoon. The stock market had held relatively firm all day, but when the pool money was offered in the loan corner there was an immediate upturn of prices and the market closed strong.

A further encouraging development, the good effect of which can scarcely be overestimated, was the decision to issue clearing house certificates. There will be a meeting of the Clearing House association to-day for the purpose of taking official action for the issuance of these certificates. The immediate effect of this will be to enable the banks to settle the balances between themselves with these certificates and thereby release large sums of currency for the regular needs of business. The decision to issue clearing house certificates is likely to end any further anxiety in regard to the supply of currency.

The first issue of clearing house certificates was in 1860 and there were several issues during the war. Other issues occurred in 1873 and 1884. The last occasion on which they were availed of was in 1893.

WEEKLY BUSINESS BULLETIN.

The Leading Industries are Generally Active, Although Many Tin Plate Mills Have Closed.

New York City.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Monetary pressure culminated this week in the closing of several banking institutions, but a serious panic was averted by the prompt action of Mr. Morgan, who assumed the leadership of a concerted movement to strengthen the situation, while the formation of a trust company committee similar to the clearing house committee did much to restore confidence.

Trade reports are irregular, the events of the week at this city tending to cause conservatism in preparations for the future, but current retail trade is active throughout the nation, and the leading industries maintain active machinery at most plants. An encouraging sign is the absence of cancellations. Transporters are unable to handle promptly all the freight offered and railway earnings in October thus far surpass last year's by 6.8 per cent.

It is encouraging to note in dispatches from Pittsburg and other leading centers of the iron and steel industry that no cancellations have been received and that specifications on old contracts maintain activity at most mills and furnaces. New business is light, but plants are fairly well occupied, except tin plate mills, which have shut down about 50 per cent. of their capacity. Many plate and structural steel mills have contracts covering output up to the end of the year.

Burglar Assaulted a Woman.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Stepping from her upstairs apartments in Bellevue, a suburb, Friday, to investigate a noise in the rooms of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Adams, below, Mrs. W. M. Rogers was seized by a burglar, bound to a chair, gagged and slashed with a razor, after which the robber ransacked the Adams place, escaping with $125.

$300,000 Fire Loss.

Marshalltown, Iowa.—Fire Friday night destroyed the Iowa Central car shops, paint shops, machinery, stock, coaches, cars and lumber, entailing a loss of $300,000.

MORGAN PREVENTS A PANIC

FORMS A POOL AND LENDS MILLIONS IN WALL STREET.

Worst of the Financial Crisis in New York City Is Believed to be Over —Three Small Banks Fail.

New York City.—As a result of Thursday's developments in the financial world there is every indication that the crisis in the banking and trust company situation has been safely passed. The Trust Company of America all through the day paid out money to depositors and closed the day with all demands having been met.

The day was marked by noteworthy episodes. First came the announcement of trouble in three minor state banks in Harlem—the Hamilton bank, the Twelfth Ward bank and the Empire City Savings bank. These banks transacted only a neighborhood business and their suspension of payment was absolutely without significance as bearing on the general situation.

By far the most notable episode of the day was the emptying of millions of money into the stock exchange through a pool headed by J. P. Morgan and other financiers, in order to avert a ruthless selling out of stocks held by brokers which was threatened because of their inability to obtain renewals of loans on which these stocks had been carried. A remarkable condition brought about this extreme stringency in money, which had gradually forced the interest rate up to an almost unprecedented figure. Certain large interests with great financial resources had been charging usurious rates of interest on call loans. One institution that had been engaged in this practice was a member of the clearing house and was severely criticized by other bankers for its action.

As a result of the criticism this institution withdrew its support and declined to offer money on call on the stock exchange. The effect of this was to run the rate for money up to 100 per cent. and when that figure was quoted an extremely sharp decline resulted in the stock market, Union Pacific, a 10 per cent. stock, selling down to par.

Notwithstanding the high rate for call money that might have been obtained, the National City bank, John D. Rockefeller and other prominent moneyed interests sent funds to the stock exchange to be lent at 6 per cent. These sums, however, were not sufficient to meet the demand.

At the time that excitement was at its height announcement was made that a pool had been formed, with J. P. Morgan at its head, to come to the rescue of the brokers for whom it was necessary to provide funds at once, in order that they might carry the stocks they were holding for their customers. The Morgan pool brought $25,000,000 into the loan corner of the exchange, where it was quickly distributed.

The effect of this relief measure was instantaneous and the rate on call money dropped from 100 to 10 per cent. Stocks advanced more rapidly than they had declined.

DR. GILLETTE IS CONVICTED.

Ex-Vice President of Mutual Life Insurance Co. Is Found Guilty of Perjury.

New York City.—The first conviction in the cases based on the disclosures in the legislative investigation of insurance affairs in 1905-1906 was obtained by the district attorney's office last night when a jury in the criminal branch of the supreme court found Dr. Walter R. Gillette, ex-vice president of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., guilty of perjury in the third degree. The verdict was accompanied with a recommendation for mercy. The maximum penalty for this degree of perjury is ten years' imprisonment.

After the report of the jury counsel for Dr. Gillette moved for a certificate of reasonable doubt and an arrest of judgment. Justice Dowling announced that he would hear the motion next Monday and for the meantime remanded Dr. Gillette to the Tombs. During the trial the defendant has been at liberty under $10,000 bonds. The jury was out one hour and 25 minutes.

In the interval Dr. Gillette chatted with his son and daughter. When called to face the jury he paled perceptibly, the pallor giving way to a flush as he heard the verdict. For a moment he appeared surprised, but promptly recovered himself. He was accompanied by the son and daughter to the entrance of the Tombs.

Dr. Gillette is 67 years old and is well known in medicine, from the practice of which he retired some years ago. He was born in Philadelphia.

The specific charge upon which Dr. Gillette was found guilty was that he had testified falsely before the grand jury on May 24, at which time he was vice president of the Mutual. The indictment alleged that at the time, under examination by District Attorney Jerome, he stated that certain moneys in the Dobbs Ferry bank were his personal funds and that subsequently he had admitted that these funds were really the property of the Mutual Life.

Thomas A Edison, the great American nventor, says, "Fully eighty per cent. of the illness of mankind comes from eating improper food or too much food, people are inclined to over-indulge themselves." This is where indigestion finds its beginning in nearly all cases. The stomach can do just so much work and no more, and when you overload it, or when you eat the wrong kind of food, the digestive organs cannot possibly do the work demanded of them. It is at such times that the stomach needs help; it demands help, and warns you by headaches, belching, sour stomach, nausea and indigestion. You should attend to this at once by taking something that will actually do the work for the stomach. Kodol will do this. It is a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. It is pleasant to take. It digests what you eat. Sold by R. C. Dodson.

The safest and most reliable cough and cold cure and lung and throat healer ever discovered. Guaranteed at all drug stores. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Guaranteed also for stomach, liver and kidney troubles, by all Druggists. 50c.

SHEATZ HAS SCORED

Nominee For Treasurer Has Made a Hit With the People.

CHAMPION OF THE SCHOOLS

Generally Commended For Successful Advocacy of An Additional Four Million Dollars For the Cause of Education.

[Special Correspondence.]

Harrisburg, Oct. 29.

John O. Sheatz, the Republican nominee for state treasurer, is about winding up a tour of the state in which he has scored at every place he has been.

He has shown himself to be a vote-getter. While he has none of the gifts of the trained orator with which to electrify an audience, he possesses to a remarkable degree an ability to impress everyone who hears him with his absolute sincerity of purpose and courage to carry out every pledge he has made.

With all the charges indulged in during the previous campaign regarding favoritism shown financial institutions that have gone upon the bond of the state treasurer, in the form of heavy deposits of state funds and security against unexpected withdrawals of such moneys, the voters of Pennsylvania must receive with gratification a declaration from Mr. Sheatz upon this subject.

A Popular Pledge.

Said Mr. Sheatz:

"As a piece of information to the people of Pennsylvania, I wish to say that if I am elected treasurer of this great state, when the time comes for me to file my bond for $500,000, I shall pay for it out of my own pocket, and not permit an obliging president of a trust company to arrange my security for me, thereby placing myself under obligation to that trust company to have $60,000 or $70,000 of the state's money constantly on deposit in that particular institution. I shall keep myself just as free from the dictations of the money powers as I am of the political powers."

Mr. Sheatz's attitude in this matter has called forth expressions of hearty approval from every quarter. His candidacy is accepted as a guarantee that the office of state treasurer will be conducted upon the highest possible plane. With Edwin S. Stuart in the governor's chair and John O. Sheatz as state treasurer, the people of Pennsylvania will have reason to be proud of the Republican party's administration of its affairs.

Champion of Public Schools.

Probably no other act in the official career of Mr. Sheatz contributed more to his popularity than his advocacy of increased appropriations to the public schools. As chairman of the appropriation committee of the house of representatives, Mr. Sheatz made a valient and successful fight in favor of raising the already large sums appropriated to education, and in his visits to the various counties in his present tour Mr. Sheatz has been complimented upon the result of his labors at Harrisburg in this direction.

The Republican party of Pennsylvania has a grand record in its fostering and protecting influence in the cause of the common schools.

The statistics show that since 1887 the enormous sum of $119,100,000 has been appropriated by Pennsylvania legislatures dominated by the Republican party, an amount many times larger than that appropriated for like purposes by any state in the Union for public school purposes.

The appropriation for the years 1887-88 was $2,000,000; for 1889-90 it was $4,000,000, and for each two years from that time until this year, with one exception, the appropriation was $11,000,000, the exception being in 1902-01, when the amount was $10,000,000.

When the legislature met this year Mr. Sheatz was among the potential factors in a movement to provide even more liberally for the schools, and with the hearty co-operation of the influential leaders of the Republican party this agitation was a fruitful one. The sum of $4,000,000 was added to the state school fund, raising the grand total to the unprecedented appropriation of $15,000,000 for the next two years.

This amount does not include the $6,500,000 specially set aside for school purposes from the local taxes collected in the city of Philadelphia, nor the large amounts raised locally in other counties.

The money included in the state appropriation to the schools is allotted to the different counties in proportion to the number of children of school age, each county receiving its pro rata share. In nearly all of the counties the amount received from the state has proved amply sufficient to meet all of the requirements of the public schools, so that in such cases it is not necessary to apply any of the money received from local taxation.

"I want to see the day," said Mr. Sheatz a few nights ago, "when the state will provide every penny of the money needed for educational purposes. The aim of the Republican party has been in that direction, and I know that the continued success of Republicanism in Pennsylvania means the accomplishment of that end.

"I shall certainly continue to do all in my power to have ample money appropriated to place the public schools of our state upon a solid and practical basis in every county of the state."

General Convention at Richmond.

The triennial General Convention of the Episcopal Church, which was in session at Richmond, Va., October 2-19, will be long remembered for its Christian earnestness and zeal, its freedom from the spirit of faction and its statesmanlike handling of many large questions. The Convention owed much to the historic associations which marked its time and place of meeting. For the first time since the Civil War the supreme governing body of the Episcopal Church met in a Southern city, and the welcome extended to it by Virginia brought home to the hearts of all a deepened realization of the oneness of heart and life of all sections of the church and nation. The 300th anniversary of the planting of the Episcopal Church in America was a reminder of past blessings and an inspiration for the future such as awakened a hearty response in the spirit which marked the deliberations of the great Convention. The Bishop of London, whose visit to the Convention as the representative of the see which had jurisdiction over the churches in America during the Colonial period, was a welcome and appropriate feature of the tercentenary, did much by his remarkable personality to inspire the members of the Convention with a truer spirit and a larger aim.

One could not be long in the atmosphere of the Convention without becoming aware of the large missionary spirit which animated it and which found expression not only in the frequent missionary sessions and public rallies, but which was evident also in the deliberations of the legislative sessions. The missionary spirit is none other than the essentially Christian spirit, the spirit which leads one to realize his responsibility for his brother next door, or across seas. The debate on the question of a negro episcopate revealed, amid all the diversity of plans proposed, a common recognition of our duty towards the colored race and an earnest desire to do whatever may be done. Of three plans suggested, viz., an autonomous negro church, missionary negro bishops with roving commissions, and suffragan bishops, the convention adopted the latter plan as most consistent with the unity of the church as a whole and with the integrity of the various dioceses. This plan will become operative after it has received the final approval of the next Convention which will meet in Cincinnati in 1910.

The convention also adopted a plan for the organization of departmental missionary Councils and Boards to relieve the pressure upon the central Board and also the better to meet the special needs of particular sections.

The Episcopal Church has long stood the deplorant of the unhappy divisions which exist among the members of Christ's flock Twenty years ago the bishops of the Anglican Communion issued what has been known as the Chicago-Lambeth Quadrilateral, which sets forth four fundamental points as a basis of Christian unity, viz., the Sacred Scriptures, the Creeds, the Sacraments and the Historic Ministry. But from the date of the issuing of the Quadrilateral nothing whatever has been done by the Episcopal Church to show that she is really willing to seek for unity on that basis. Some thirteen years ago a well known religious weekly addressed a letter to each of the bishops of the Episcopal Church stating, that in its opinion the movement towards unity might be promoted were the Episcopal Church to accept the practice, or at least the principle, of exchanging pulpits. The bishops almost to a man frowned upon this suggestion, with the result that other Christian communions have been disposed to think, rightly or wrongly, that the Episcopal Church is not much in earnest in professing a desire for unity. The one man who through evil and good report has been unceasing in his efforts to obtain a recognition of the substance of the Quadrilateral in the Constitution of the Church has been Dr. Huntington of Grace Church, New York. After repeated failures he succeeded at Richmond in having a preamble to the Constitution adopted. This preamble sets forth the four points of the Quadrilateral as the essential things held by the Episcopal Church, and also recognizes as members of Christ's flock all who have been duly baptized in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost.

Dr. Brady of Toledo (the well known publicist, Cyrus Townsend Brady) introduced a resolution, known as the open pulpit resolution, recognizing the right of a bishop to permit Christian men who are not ministers of the Episcopal Church to speak from her pulpits. This resolution was passed by both Houses. The adoption of the Preamble and of the open-pulpit resolution, shows that the Episcopal Church is earnest in her desire for unity and for the Christian fellowship which alone will promote unity.

In place of the usual Pastoral Letter from the bishops, the work of the Convention was closed with an address from the Presiding Bishop, the Rt Rev. Daniel S. Tuttle of Missouri. The strength, simplicity and apostolic ferver of this man have impressed themselves upon the life and spirit of the whole Church. "Dear brethren in the Lord," he said, "stand fast in the faith, keep step together in the oneness of the truth, in the bond of peace and righteousness of life. Look for great things from God. Stand by good things for Him. 'Bate not one jot of heart or hope.' In God's mercifulness in Christ, as He hath blessed our fathers, so will He, if only we will let Him, be with us and with this Church, loved as our mother, through our pilgrimage and conduct us to our rest."

FLOOD OF GOLD IS COMING FROM EUROPE.

This Country is in a Position to Import All that It Needs.

New York, Oct. 29.—Great assistance in relieving the financial stringency is expected to result from the large engagements of gold for import made yesterday and from the further large imports which it is believed will be made within the next few weeks. The movement of American crops to European markets, together with the revival of a demand for copper abroad, will give the United States large credits with foreign bankers, and these can be availed of inbringings in gold, it is confidently believed, to the fullest extent that may be necessary.

Business at the New York Clearing House was quieter today than at any time since the financial disturbance began. Aside from the daily session of the loan committee to examine collateral offered by banks to meet their balances, there was practically nothing for the active members to do.

It was announced today that several of the banks which were compelled to suspend last week have about perfected their plans to reopen for business.

The runs on the Trust Company of America and the Lincoln Trust Company continued today, but in diminished volume.

Discourage the Tariff Tinkerers.

If there is one principle of the Republican Party that is regarded as supremely vital by the overwhelming majority of the people of Pennsylvania, it is the protective tariff. The "Iowa idea" of tariff readjustment cannot obtain a foothold in this State, save among a few visionaries and misguided theorists who have no adequate conception of the blessings conferred upon the industries of the Commonwealth, and through them upon the people, by the policy of protection to labor.

Chairman W. R. Andrews, of the Republican State Committee, has, in no uncertain tones, sounded the call to duty for all the Republicans of the Commonwealth. That duty is to rally in their might at the polls on election day—November 5—and demonstrate beyond all cavil, that the grand old Keystone State is still loyal and unswerving in her tariff allegiance. The industrial interests of Pennsylvania cannot contemplate with severity any movement which has tariff changing as its object, and the voters should fully realize that they must rally to the support of these interests and throw the influence of the State in the scale against revenue revision.

The would-be tariff tinkerers are endeavoring to promulgate their theory throughout the Union, to the end that they may control a sufficient number of delegates in the Republican National Convention next year, to have a plank incorporated in the platform of that body, pledging the party to revision of the tariff. Here in Pennsylvania this should be stubbornly resisted. The people of this State want no tariff revision. The manufacturers, the coal and oil operators, and the textile workers and the miners, are united against any changes in the tariff schedules, and this sentiment is shared by all classes of business and professional men and capitalists as well as by all sorts and conditions of working men and working women.

It requires no marvellous intellectual capacity, neither is the gift of prophecy neccesary for a Pennsylvanian to foresee what would occur if the whole subject of the tariff should be thrown open for public discussion and the various schedules subjected to the reckless criticism of those who call themselves revisionists. Business demoralization would be the inevitable result; trade stagnation could not be avoided during the time consumed in the discussion and rearrangement of the schedules and the confusion that would ensue would have a disastrous and far-reaching effect, which could not fail to be felt long after a settlement would have been reached by Congress.

In Pennsylvania the unmistakable sentiment is in favor of letting the tariff alone. The people of this State are "stand patters" of the most strenuous type and Chairman Andrews speaks for them eloquently and well in enunciating that wholesome and beneficial policy. When the sixty-eight delegates of Pennsylvania shall confront the tariff tinkerers in the Republican National Convention next year, they should be in a position to vigorously declare that the Keystone State has spoken in absolute condemnation of the revision idea. And the emphasis of thir declaration, with the full authority to pronounce it, should be plainly manifest in a rousing majority for the Republican candidate for State Treasurer on Nov 5.

SOUNDING A WARNING

Republicans Cautioned of Danger in Over-Confidence.

MUST GET OUT THE VOTE

Even a Reduction In the Majority Would Be Hailed as a Victory By the Enemies of the Party of Protection.

[Special Correspondence.]

Philadelphia, Oct. 29.

Predictions of a sweeping victory for the Republican party in Pennsylvania at next Tuesday's election are all based upon reports from the various counties that the rank and file of the organization is going to get out a large percentage of the Republican vote.

Much will depend, however, upon the activity of the party vigilantes, and warning messages are being sent out from Philadelphia headquarters to leave nothing undone to get Republicans to the polls.

While former independents are proclaiming their loyalty to the Republican nominee, the party leaders appreciate the danger that lurks in the feeling of security that exists among Republican committeemen. They realize that the Democrats are looking forward confidently to next year's national election and are going to poll a big vote to encourage the members of their party to line up for the coming presidential contest.

No State "Issues" This Year.

There have been absolutely no state "issues" developed by the present campaign in Pennsylvania.

Governor Stuart's administration, following the action of the Republican majority in the legislature, brought about indictments in the state capitol cases and removed that issue from the political canvass, and the record of John O. Sheatz in public and private life prevented criticism of the Republican candidate from the outset of the campaign.

Upon every hand, however, the political contest in this state has been regarded as the skirmish of next year's presidential battle, and Republicans familiar with the situation are concerned regarding the result of the balloting on Tuesday next.

They are fearful that a feeling of over-confidence will lead to a laxity among the party workers and that proper efforts will not be put forth to get the voters to the polls.

"If Pennsylvania is to take her proper place at the head of the procession of Republican states on Tuesday next," said Colonel Wesley R. Andrews, chairman of the Republican state committee today, "the Republican voters must be alert. They must go to the polls and register their continued adherence to the principles and policies of the party, and by so doing emphasize the sentiment of their great state in favor of the party of progress and prosperity. The Democrats are going to put their best efforts into the work of getting their men out to vote, and in order that they may record one of their old-time ringing majorities, the Republicans must be wideawake and active from the hour of the opening of the polls until the last ballot shall be deposited. They must take nothing for granted, but act upon the principle that a battle is never won until it is over and the enemy is captured or routed.

"Pennsylvania is the greatest industrial state in the Union, and Democratic triumph, which a reduced Republican majority would mean, would be disastrous to wage earners and capitalists alike.

Must Not Falter.

"If Pennsylvania should falter on Tuesday next, the enemies of the protective tariff would have reason to be elated, and they would herald the result of the election as an indication that the so-called tariff reformers are growing in strength in our state, and that the 'Iowa idea' for a scaling down of the tariff is spreading even into Pennsylvania, the very citidal of protection.

"The consequence of such a state of affairs would be illustrated by a cessation of all industrial enterprises within our borders, with the inevitable result that the workingman and the farmers, the mechanics and the mill owners would in the end bear the brunt of the disaster.

"I sincerely trust that the Republican voters of Pennsylvania will not be deceived by those who affect to see no danger in Republican indifference, but that they will go to work at once and discharge their full duty to the party and to their state."

The Princess Elopes

By HAROLD McGRATH

Author of

"The Man on the Box," "Hearts and Masks," Etc.

(Copyright, 1905, Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

SYNOPSIS.

Arthur Warrington, American consul to Barscheit, tells how reigning Grand Duke attempts to force his neice, Princess Hildegarde, to marry Prince Dopplekinn, an old widower. Warrington does not know the princess even by sight. While horseback riding in the country night overtakes him and he seeks accommodations in a dilapidated castle. Here he finds two women and an old man servant. One woman is Princess Hildegarde and the other a friend, Hon. Betty Moore, of England. They detain him to witness a mock marriage between the princess and a disgraced army officer, Steinbock, done for the purpose of foiling the grand duke. Steinbock attempts to kiss the princess and she is rescued by Warrington. Steinbock disappears for good. Max Scharfenstein, an old American friend of Warrington's reaches Barscheit.

CHAPTER IV.

He came straight to the consulate and I was so glad to see him that I sat him down in front of the sideboard and left orders that I was at home to no one. We had been classmates and roommates at college, and two better friends never lived. We spent the whole night in recounting the good old days, sighed a little over the departed ones, and praised or criticized the living. Hadn't they been times, though? The nights we had stolen up to Philadelphia to see the shows, the great Thanksgiving games in New York, the commencements, and all that!

Max had come out of the far west. He was a foundling who had been adopted by a wealthy German ranchman named Scharfenstein, which name Max assumed as his own, it being as good as any. Nobody knew anything about Max's antecedents, but he was so big and handsome and jolly that no one cared a hang. For all that he did not know his parentage, he was a gentleman, something that has to be bred in the bone. Once or twice I remember seeing him angry; in anger he was arrogant, deadly, but calm. He was a god in track-linen, for he was what few big men are, quick and agile. The big fellow who is catlike in his movements is the most formidable of athletes. One thing that invariably amused me was his inordinate love of uniforms. He would always stop when he saw a soldier or the picture of one, and his love of arms was little short of a mania. He was an expert fencer and a dead shot besides. (Pardon the parenthesis, but I feel it my duty to warn you that nobody fights a duel in this little history, and nobody gets killed.)

On leaving college he went in for medicine, and his appearance in the capital city of Barscheit was due obviously to the great medical college, famous the world over for its nerve specialists. This was Max's first adventure in the land of gutturals. I explained to him, and partly unraveled, the tangle of laws; as to the language, he spoke that, not like a native, but as one.

Max was very fond of the society of women, and at college we used to twit him about it, for he was always eager to meet a new face, trusting that the new one might be the ideal for which he was searching.

"Well, you old Dutchman," said I, "have you ever found that ideal woman of yours?"

"Bah!"—lighting a pipe. "She will never be found. A horse and a trusty dog for me; those two you may eventually grow to understand. Of course, I don't say, if the woman came along—the right one—I mightn't go under. I'm philosopher enough to admit that possibility. I want her tall, hair like cornsilk, eyes like the corn-flower, of brilliant intellect, reserved, and dignified, and patient. I want a woman, not humorous, but who understands humor, and I have never heard of one. So, you see, it's all smoke; and I never talk woman these times unless I'm smoking,"—with a gesture which explained that he had given up the idea altogether. "A doctor sees so much of women that he finally sees nothing of woman."

"Oh, if you resort to epigrams, I can see that it's all over."

"All over. I'm so used to being alone that I shouldn't know what to do with a wife." He puffed seriously.

Ah! the futility of our desires, of our castles, of our dreams! The complacency with which we jog along in what we deem to be our own particular groove! I recall a girl friend of my youth who was going to be a celibate, a great reformer, and toward that end was studying for the pulpit. She is now the mother of several children, the most peaceful and unorative woman I know. You see, humanity goes whirring over various sidetracks, thinking them to be the main line, till fate puts its peculiar but happy hand to the switch. Scharfenstein had been plugging away over rusty nails and grass-grown ties—till he came to Barscheit.

"Hope is the wings of the heart," said I, when I thought the pause had grown long enough. "You still hope?"

"In a way. If I recollect, you had an affair once,"—shrewdly.

I smoked on. I wasn't quite ready to speak.

"You were always on the hunt for ideals, too, as I remember; hope you'll find her."

"Max, my boy, I am solemnly convinced that I have."

"Good Lord, you don't mean to tell me that you are hooked?" he cried.

"I see no reason why you should use that particular tone," I answered stiffly.

"Oh, come now; tell me all about it. Who is she, and when's the wedding?"

"I don't know when the wedding's going to be, but I'm mighty sure that I have met the one girl. Max, there never was a girl like her. Witty she is, and wise; as beautiful as a summer's dawn; merry and brave; rides, drives, plays the 'cello, dances like a moon-shadow; and all that,"—with a wave of the hand.

"You've got it bad. Remember how you used to write poetry at college? Who is she if I may ask?"

"The Honorable Betty Moore, at present the guest of her highness, the Princess Hildegarde,"—with pardonable pride.

Max whistled. "You're a lucky beggar. One by one we turn traitor to our native land. A Britisher! I never should have believed it of you, of the man whose class declamation was on the firey subject of patriotism. But is it all on one side?"

"I don't know, Max; sometimes I think so, and then I don't."

"How long have you known her?"

"Little more than a month."

"A month? Everything moves swiftly these days, except European railway cars."

"There's a romance, Max, but another besides her is concerned, and I can not tell you. Some day, when everything quiets down, I'll get you into a corner with a bottle, and you will find it worth while."

"Max, There Never Was a Girl Like Her."

"The bottle?"

"Both."

"From rumors I've heard, this princess is a great one for larks; rides bicycles and automobiles, and generally raises the deuce. What sort is she?"

"If you are going to remain in Barscheit, my boy, take a friendly warning. Do not make any foolish attempt to see her. She is more fascinating than a roulette table."

This was a sly dig. Max smiled. A recent letter from him had told of an encounter with the goddess at Monte Carlo. Fortune had been all things but favorable.

"I'm not afraid of your princess; besides, I came here to study."

"And study hard, my boy, study hard. Her highness is not the only pretty woman in Barscheit. There's a raft of them."

"I'll paddle close to the shore," with a smile.

"By the way, I'll wake you up Thursday."

"How"—lazily.

"A bout at Mueller's Rathskeller. Half a dozen American lads, one of whom is called home. Just fixed up his passports for him. You'll be as welcome as the flowers in the spring. Some of the lads will be in your classes."

"Put me down. It will be like old times. I went to the reunion last June. Everything was in its place but you. Hang it, why can't time always go on as it did then?"

"Time, unlike our watches, never has to go to the jeweler's for repairs," said I owlishly.

Max leaned over, took my bull-terrier by the neck and deposited him on his lap.

"Good pup, Artie—if he's anything like his master. Three years, my boy, since I saw you. And here you are, doing nothing and lallygagging at court with the nobility. I wish I had an uncle who was a senator. 'Pull' is everything these days."

"You Dutchman, I won this place on my own merit,"—indignantly.

"Forget it!"—grinning.

"You are impertinent."

"But truthful, always."

And then we smoked a while in silence. The silent friend is the best of the lot. He knows that he hasn't got to talk unless he wants to, and likewise that it is during these lapses of speech that the vine of friendship grows and tightens about the heart. When you sit beside a man and feel that you need not labor to entertain him it's a good sign that you thoroughly understand each other. I was first to speak.

"I don't understand why you should go in for medicine so thoroughly. It can't be money, for heaven knows your father left you a yearly income which alone would be a fortune to me."

"Chivalry shivers these days; the chill of money is on everything. A man must do something—a man who is neither a sloth nor a fool. A man must have something to put his whole heart into; and I despise money as money. I give away the bulk of my income."

"Marry, and then you will not have to," I said flippantly.

"You're a sad dog. Do you know, I've been thinking about epigrams."

"No!"

"Yes. I find that an epigram is produced by the same cause that produces the pearl in the oyster."

"That is to say, a healthy mentality never superinduces an epigram? Fudge!" said I, yanking the pup from his lap to mine. "According to your diagnosis, your own mind is diseased."

"Have I cracked an epigram?"—with pained surprise.

"Well, you nearly bent one," I compromised.

Then we both laughed, and the pup started up and licked my face before I could prevent him.

"Did I ever show you this?"—taking out a locket which was attached to one end of his watch chain. He passed the trinket to me.

"What is it?" I asked, turning it over and over.

"It's the one slender link that connects me with my babyhood. It was around my neck when Scharfenstein picked me up. Open it and look at the face inside."

I did so. A woman's face peered up at me. It might have been beautiful but for the troubled eyes and the drooping lips. It was German in type, evidently of high breeding, possessing the subtle lines which distinguish the face of the noble from the peasant's. From the woman's face I glanced at Max's. The eyes were something alike.

"Who do you think it is?" I asked, when I had studied the face sufficiently to satisfy my curiosity.

"I've a sneaking idea that it may be my mother. Scharfenstein found me toddling about in a railroad station, and that locket was the only thing about me that might be used in the matter of identification. You will observe that there is no lettering, not even the jeweler's usual carat mark to qualify the gold. I recall nothing; life with me dates only from the wide plains and grazing cattle. I was born either in Germany or Austria. That's all I know. And to tell you the honest truth, boy, it's the reason I've placed my woman ideal so high. So long as I place her over my head I'm not foolish enough to weaken into thinking I can have her. What woman wants a man without a name?"

THE PEACEFUL SUBURBS.

"Sort of an endless chain war with your neighbor, eh?" said the visitor from the city. "How is that?"

"Well," replied the suburbanite, "his chickens flew over the hedge and ate all my garden seed. I got even by getting a big tomcat and the cat ate the chickens."

"Ah, an 'eye for an eye,' eh?"

"Yes, but it wasn't long before he got a bulldog and the bulldog finished the tomcat."

"Great Scott! I suppose that ended the feud?"

"Not at all. I borrowed a catamount from a wandering circus and that killed the bulldog. Now, if he don't get an elephant to finish the catamount before I can return it to the show I guess I'll come out winner."

Discharged Because Doctors Could Not Cure.

Levi P. Brockway, S. Second Ave., Anoka., Minn., says: "After lying for five months in a hospital I was discharged as incurable, and given only six months to live. My heart was affected, I had smothering spells, and sometimes fell unconscious. I got so I couldn't use my arms, my eyesight was impaired and the kidney secretions were badly disordered. I was completely worn out and discouraged when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, but they went right to the cause of the trouble and did their work well. I have been feeling well ever since."

WHEN MILESTONES CHEER.

They Always Gladden the Heart of the Pedestrian.

In a walking trip a milestone along the way is the most companionable fellow in the world; your spirits rise as you near him as though you were about to greet a human friend, and they keep almost consistently on his high level till his brother a mile distant advances to meet you.

And when you overlook one of this friendly company because of an encroaching bank or screening boughs, says the Travel Magazine, his neighbor further on comes to you doubly welcome. At the latter end of this passage in the journey your spirits flag a trifle as though oppressed by a sense of desertion. You may even scowl at the overhanging bank which is more than a party to this concealment.

Those worthy persons who attend to the roads should see to it that every milestone within their province stands out frankly from its leafy background. Observance of this, however, would rob the wayfarer of that leap of the heart which is his when the stone tells the story of two miles done rather than one. For however much the landscape and the minute world at his feet may claim the footfarer's admiration he is still keenly alive to the virtue of decent distances covered in his day's journey.

Saw It Come Out of a Cow.

A little city boy and his sister Dorothy were taken to the country for the first time.

The two children were happy as the day was long. In the late afternoon they watched the cows come home, heard with delight the tinkling cowbells, and the little boy even went to the barns to see the milking done.

At supper, just as Dorothy was lifting her glass to her rosy lips, the boy cried out:

"Oh, Dotty, don't! You musn't drink that milk. It's not fit to drink. It came out of a cow; I saw it."

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Says It's Not So.

Report to the effect that electric lights are detrimental to the eyesight are pronounced unfounded by an electrical expert in the London Times. He says that the trouble arises from too direct exposure of the eye to the light, and that effect would be the same or worse with any other light.

The shortest and surest way to live with honor in the world is to be in reality what we would appear to be.—De Scales.

IN LIFE'S BRIEF SPAN.

Experiences, Joys and Sorrows of the Human Existence.

The loves and friendships of individuals partake of the frail character of human life, and are brief and uncertain. The experience of a human life may be shortly summed up: A little loving and a good deal of sorrowing; some bright hopes and many bitter disappointments; some gorgeous Thursdays when the skies are bright and the heavens blue, when Providence, bending over us in blessings, glads the heart almost to madness; many dismal Fridays, when the smoke of torment beclouds the mind and undying sorrows gnaw upon the heart; some high ambitions and many Waterloo defeats, until the heart becomes like a charnel house filled with dead affections, embalmed in holy but sorrowful memories; and then the chord is loosed, the golden bowl is broken, the individual life—a cloud, a vapor, passes away.—Matthew Hale Carpenter.

Only Royal Doctor.

The only royal doctor in Europe is Duke Carl Theodore of Bavaria. Few German princes have had a more romantic career than Duke Carl Theodore. He recently completed, with his wife as his assistant, his five-thousandth operation for cataract.

Poor people flock to his hospital, where they are treated free, the duke asking payment only from those who can easily afford it. He it was who successfully treated the kaiser, when, eight years ago, he was temporarily blinded by a swinging rope when cruising on the Hobenzollern in the North sea.

Delicate Shade of Meaning.

A keen retort is credited to the late Dr. Haig-Brown, master of Charterhouse.

His brother-in-law, Dr. Porter, the master of Peterhouse, another famous English school, wrote him, inquiring his precise meaning in a certificate that a boy's character was "generally" good.

"When I say generally," he replied, "I mean not particularly."

Fair Warning.

"Well, I see that slim girls will be the style this winter," remarked the harmless idiot.

"Yes," responded his sister, "and if any of my girl friends suddenly get slender over night I don't want you to ask any fool questions. Hear me?"—Pittsburg Post.

WHAT IS PE-RU-NA?

Is it a Catarrh Remedy, or a Tonic, or is it Both?

Some people call Peruna a great tonic. Others refer to Peruna as a great catarrh remedy.

Which of these people are right? Is it more proper to call Peruna a catarrh remedy than to call it a tonic?

Our reply is, that Peruna is both a tonic and a catarrh remedy. Indeed, there can be no effectual catarrh remedy that is not also a tonic.

In order to thoroughly relieve any case of catarrh, a remedy must not only have a specific action on the mucous membranes affected by the catarrh, but it must have a general tonic action on the nervous system.

Catarrh, even in persons who are otherwise strong, is a weakened condition of some mucous membrane. There must be something to strengthen the circulation, to give tone to the arteries, and to raise the vital forces.

Perhaps no vegetable remedy in the world has attracted so much attention from medical writers as HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS. The wonderful efficacy of this herb has been recognized many years, and is growing in its hold upon the medical profession. When joined with CUBEBS and COPAIBA a trio of medical agents is formed in Peruna which constitutes a specific remedy for catarrh that in the present state of medical progress cannot be improved upon. This action, reinforced by such renowned tonics as COLLINSONIA CANADENSIS, CORYDALIS FORMOSA and CEDRON SEED, ought to make this compound an ideal remedy for catarrh in all its stages and locations in the body.

From a theoretical standpoint, therefore, Peruna is beyond criticism. The use of Peruna, confirms this opinion. Numberless testimonials from every quarter of the earth furnish ample evidence that this judgment is not over enthusiastic. When practical experience confirms a well-grounded theory the result is a truth that cannot be shaken.

Stretching Rings.

A jeweler in Third avenue, New York city, advertises "Wedding rings purchased here will be stretched to any size without extra cost." His enterprise is based on a knowledge of human frailty. "The girl often happens to balk," he says, "and the fellow gets it in the neck. The ring for that intended may not fit the finger of the next intended; so I stretch it for nothing. I have stretched rings as many as five times for one man." Why not use rubber rings?

LIQUEFYING HONEY.

How One Bee Keeper Manages to Keep Ahead of His Orders.

After my honey is put up in glass cans, it begins to thicken, and look milky, as soon as cold weather sets in. This takes place, generally, during September, and, long before winter begins, every can, if let alone, would be as solid as a rock, figuratively speaking. But I don't give it the chance, if I can help it, writes a correspondent of Bee Culture, for as soon as it begins to look milky, I begin to remelt it. It takes less heat, and it can be more quickly done at that time than later, after it has had time to become solid. This, too, seems to answer all the purpose, for it will generally remain liquid all through the winter after this one treatment.

We have over our kitchen stove a shelf that holds one dozen quart cans. With the common firing for family use honey placed on this will liquefy, ready for closing the can, in about 24 hours. It is very essential that every granule should be melted to prevent granulation a second time later on. I always unscrew the top of each can a very little when I expose the cans to the heat. This may not be necessary. Years ago I liquefied pound bottles in the same way without removing the corks, and it seemed to work just as well. However, I think it better to give the packages a chance to "breathe."

As long as I have liquid honey on hand to supply the market, I keep this shelf only occupied with cans, changing whenever necessary, but later on, when the markets begin to call more regularly for honey, the shelf is too slow. To keep ahead of my orders, I use a two-wick oil-stove with a sheet-iron oven. The latter accommodates two dozen cans at a time, and with blaze turned so low that the cans can be handled comfortably bare-handed at any time, two batches can be liquefied in a day. This gives me a liquefying capacity, including the dozen on the shelf, of five dozen a day, more than enough to keep me supplied.

BUYING BREEDERS.

Use Great Care In Their Selection If You Would Do Well.

During the fall season thousands of birds will change hands for breeding and show purposes. Great care should be exercised in their selection. It is much better to buy what you actually need than what you think you want. While there is a great deal of pleasure in rearing a bird that has won a prize there is far more pleasure and profit, says the Northwestern Agriculturist, in owning one that will produce winners.

If about to start in the poultry business, whatever else you do, get good stock. It is better to start with a trio of first-class birds than a dozen of inferior, or even mediocre quality. Buy a reliable breeder, whose strain is established, and keep this strain pure. Do not think you are economizing in buying cheap and inferior stock to start with.

It is advisable, when investing in the poultry business, to select the best specimens obtainable of the breed which is particularly adapted to the trade to which you are catering, and this selection should be very carefully made, since the future success of your business will depend materially upon the quality of your breeding stock.

Cramming Chickens.

A few years ago there was a great furore made over the newly invented "cramming machine," a device, as one man described it, "for making a chicken eat, whether it wanted to or not." It was discovered that the digestive apparatus of the chicken, however unimparable, could not stand the cramming process for long. Two weeks was found to be long enough, and for this length of time, the game did not pay for the ammunition. There is no better way than good feeding in the old-fashioned way.

Feed for Ducks.

Ducks do not easily digest whole grain, such as corn, wheat, etc., and consequently do better on a ration composed of mashes of ground grain, soaked turnips and potatoes, mashed, etc. If the yards are small, a drinking fountain for providing water is better than an open receptacle, as the ducks will then not be so apt to form muddy pools.

MIX THIS YOURSELF

RECIPE FOR SIMPLE HOME-MADE KIDNEY CURE.

Inexpensive Mixture of Harmless Vegetable Ingredients Said to Overcome Kidney and Bladder Trouble Promptly.

Here is a simple home-made mixture as given by an eminent authority on Kidney diseases, who makes the statement in a New York daily newspaper, that it will relieve almost any case of Kidney trouble if taken before the stage of Bright's disease. He states that such symptoms as lame back, pain in the side, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night; painful and discolored urination, are readily overcome. Here is the recipe; try it:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

A well-known physician is authority that these ingredients are all harmless and easily mixed at home by shaking well in a bottle. This mixture has a peculiar healing and soothing effect upon the entire Kidney and Urinary structure, and often overcomes the worst forms of Rheumatism in just a little while. This mixture is said to remove all blood disorders and cure the Rheumatism by forcing the Kidneys to filter and strain from the blood and system all uric acid and foul, decomposed waste matter, which cause the afflictions. Try it if you aren't well. Save the prescription.

NO STAIN ON HIS RECORD.

That's Where the Driver Had the Best of the Preacher.

A New York clergyman, who often spends his vacation in fishing the streams of the Adirondacks, was on one trip adopted by a handsome setter dog, which insisted on following him from camp to camp, as he moved along the stream.

One day he met a party of men working upstream with a native guide. The guide immediately recognized the dog as his own property.

"Trying to steal my setter, are you?" he shouted at the clergyman. "I'll have you to jail for this! There's a law in the woods just as big as you have in the city."

The clergyman endeavored to explain that he was an unwilling companion of the dog, which had refused to be driven away, but to little effect until he added a two-dollar bill to his arguments.

"It's queer what strange things happen to a man up here," he said to the stage-driver who later carried him away from the woods. "That is the first time I was ever accused of stealing a dog."

"Yes, sir," replied the driver, sympathetically, and added, after a moment's pause, "For myself, sir, I have never been accused of stealing anything."—Youth's Companion.

The Sinful Human Heart.

A clergyman was addressing a youthful class in Sunday school. To illustrate the idea of regulating the sinful human heart he took out his watch and held it up that all might see it.

"See this watch," he said. "Just imagine that it does not keep good time—that it goes all ways but the right way. What ought I to do with it?"

Instantly a little boy held up his hand.

"I know!" he shouted. "Sell it to a friend."

Not to Be Wasted.

Ben Cary had near his house a swamp, which was a breeding-place for herds of man-eating mosquitoes. Some enterprising neighbors, who learned of the crude oil treatment, went to Ben and tried to persuade him to exterminate the pests.

"Exterminate 'em?" said Ben. "Not much. Not much. Why, Mis' Cary an' I just paid $32 for screening the side piazzer that she's been pestering me about for years. How we goin' to get any good of it, if we kill off the skeeters?"—Youth's Companion.

OLD SOAKERS

Get Saturated with Caffeine.

When a person has used coffee for a number of years and gradually declined in health, it is time the coffee should be left off in order to see whether or not it has been the cause of the trouble.

A lady in Huntsville, Ala., says she used coffee for about 40 years, and for the past 20 years has had severe stomach trouble. "I have been treated by many physicians but all in vain. Everything failed to give relief. Was prostrated for some time, and came near dying. When I recovered sufficiently to partake of food and drink I tried coffee again and it soured on my stomach.

"I finally concluded that coffee was the cause of my trouble and stopped using it. I tried tea in its place and then milk, but neither agreed with me; then I commenced using Postum, had it properly made and it was very pleasing to the taste.

"I have now used it four months, and my health is so greatly improved that I can eat almost anything I want and can sleep well, whereas, before, I suffered for years with insomnia.

"I have found the cause of my troubles and a way to get rid of them. You can depend upon it, I appreciate Postum." "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

DID NOT WANT TO BUY.

The Great Musician Had No Use for His Production.

A great tenor had been singing for some hours into a phonograph.

"The phonograph," he said, "is a wonderful thing. It almost realizes the wish of the Scottish poet, the wish that we might see ourselves as others see us. We can now, at least, hear ourselves, a thing impossible before. The phonograph teaches us many valuable lessons. When I was in the army, before I realized the capabilities of my voice, I played the flute. A phonograph salesman brought a phonograph to my quarters and tried to sell it to me on the instalment plan. I was undecided. Finally the man took out a blank cylinder.

"'See,' he said, rather reluctantly, 'here is a blank cylinder. You may make a record on it, then we will run it off and you shall hear yourself. It's a costly favor I am doing you, but it will show you what a fine instrument this is.'

"I was delighted.

"'I'll get my flute,' I said. 'I'll play a flute solo.'

"Well, I played my best into the machine. It seemed to me that I had never combined before such feeling with such accuracy. I was more than pleased with myself. Then the man put in the cylinder, and the music began to issue forth. I frowned.

"'Is that me?' I said.

"'Yes, sir,' said the man.

"'Really me, just as I played?'

"'Precisely, sir, precisely. And now,' said he, "do you want to buy the phonograph?'

"'No,' said I; 'I want to sell the flute.'"

SKIN SORE EIGHT YEARS.

Spent $300 on Doctors and Remedies but Got No Relief—Cuticura Cures in a Week.

"Upon the limbs and between the toes my skin was rough and sore, and also sore under the arms, and I had to stay at home several times because of this affection. Up to a week or so ago I had tried many other remedies and several doctors, and spent about three hundred dollars, without any success, but this is to-day the seventh day that I have been using the Cuticura Remedies (costing a dollar and a half), which have cured me completely, so that I can again attend to my business. I went to work again to-night. I had been suffering for eight years and have now been cured by the Cuticura Remedies within a week. Fritz Hirschlaff, 24 Columbus Ave., New York, N. Y., March 29 and April 6, 1906."

A Whistler Criticism.

The late James McNeil Whistler was standing bareheaded in a hat shop, the clerk having taken his hat to another part of the shop for comparison. A man rushed in with his hat in his hand and supposing Whistler to be a clerk angrily confronted him.

"See here," he said, "This hat doesn't fit."

Whistler eyed the stranger from head to foot and then drawled out:

"Well, neither does your coat. What's more, if you'll pardon my saying so, I'll be hanged if I care much for the color of your trousers."—"Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree" in Everybody's.

Hospital Story-Telling.

It is curious that philanthropists in search of a novel means of doing good do not engage reciters and story-tellers to visit hospitals and amuse the patients. A rich man in New York engaged Marshall P. Wilder, the diminutive entertainer, who has given pleasure in nearly every city, to visit regularly certain hospitals in New York. Mr. Wilder was welcomed enthusiastically by the convalescent patients, and his merry stories did them good.

The Truth of It.

"Well," said Nagget, during their quarrel, "you'll give me credit for a good disposition at least."

"Not at all," replied his wife, "it isn't that you've a good disposition, but you're simply too lazy to kick."—Philadelphia Press.

In my own native state, Pennsylvania

A HARD STRUGLE.

Many an Emporium Citizen Finds the Struggle Hard.

With a back constantly aching.
With distressing urinary disorders,
Daily existence is but a struggle.
No need to keep it up.
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.
Emporium people endorse this claim.

John Montgomery, living on West Sixth St., Emporium, Pa. says; "I can recommend Doan' Kidney Pills as a safe and reliable remedy for backache and kidney disorders. I suffered with lame back and sharp shooting pains through my loins and was so lame at times that I was unable to straighten up. Every move I made would cause pains to shoot through me. My kidneys were very weak and the secretions irregular causing me much annoyance and forcing me to arise many times during the night. I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills from L. Taggart, the druggist, and since using this remedy I have been completely cured of all anoying symptoms of Kidney trouble. I am able to sleep soundly all night and do not have any more trouble with my back. I heartly endorse Doan's Kidney Pills."

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves — re-establish them as needed, with

Dr. Shoop's Restorative

Modern Naval Warfare.

Nothing in all modern times has advanced more rapidly than naval engineering and warfare. Ever since the public has been impressed with the fact that a nation's life depends on its navy, it has been becoming more and more interested. But as it makes dul reading and as very few have had any opportunity to inspect a monster Battleship at close range, most of us have, at least, only a vague sense of its magnitude and power. Therefore Lyman H. Howe's moving pictures of a great naval attack, in Emporium Opera House on Thursday, Oct. 31st. will prove not only distinctly novel and instructive, but will gratify much natural curiosity. To many minds, the series will impart the first true and full conception of naval realities, for however much we may have read of them, nothing oonveys ideas more clearly than seeing actualities. The pictures were secured only thru special facilities given by the Lords of the Admiralty, England, and as Mr. Howe controls the sole American rights for the greater portion, they are exhibited in this country only by him. The scenes showing the physical drill and amusements aboard ship, are followed by perfect views of the leatst sub-marines in cruising trim, and with only their backs and conning towers visible. Then a realistic torpedo attack is shown. These deadly and terrible weapons are shown leaving their muzzles and ploughing the sea. As they speed directly toward the audience, their paths are plainly visible. A touching scene showing Jack's last farewell to his sweetheart just before the battle, is then introduced as a natural incident of the tragedies of war. It is so finely and pathetically portrayed that it appeals forcefully to all human sympathy. The series concludes with scenes of a land attack by naval forces. The vigorous bombardment from the gunboats to shield the landing troops is followed by the flight up the slope, landing and hauling a 4 7 gun, and armored train and maxim battery in action. Finally the repulse is shown amid the boom of artillery and crackle of rifles, and the invaders are seen racing with their guns for the boats, while the victors fall in line of march to headquarters.

Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says:—"I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."
